Reviewers tell us that Case/Fair is one of the all-time bestselling principles of economics texts because they trust it to be clear, thorough and complete. This well-respected author team is joined for the 9th edition by a new co-author, Sharon Oster. Sharon's research and teaching experience brings new coverage of modern topics and an applied approach to economic theory, as demonstrated in the new Economics in Practice feature. Introduction to Economics; Concepts and Problems in Macroeconomics; The Core of Macroeconomic Theory; Further Macroeconomic Issues; The World Economy For those looking for a trusted and authoritative principles of macroeconomics text that focuses on international economies as well as the Keynesian Cross.

Case/Fair/Oster believe strongly, that a text should use the Keynesian Cross carefully and systematically, to build up to the AD/AS model. One of the great benefits of this approach, is that students of economics won't mistakenly apply what they learned about simple demand and supply to aggregate demand & supply. (A detailed summary of this approach can be found in the preface).

In this book Ray Fair expounds powerful techniques for estimating and analyzing macroeconometric models. He takes advantage of the remarkable decrease in computational costs that has occurred since the early 1980s by implementing such sophisticated techniques as stochastic simulation. Testing Macroeconometric Models also incorporates the assumption of rational expectations in the estimation, solution, and testing of the models. And it presents the latest versions of Fair's models of the economies of the United States and other countries. After estimating and testing the U.S. model, Fair analyzes its properties, including those relevant to economic policymakers: the optimal monetary policy instrument, the effect of a government spending reduction on the government deficit, whether monetary policy is becoming less effective over time, and the sensitivity of policy effects to the assumption of rational expectations. Ray Fair has conducted research on structural macroeconometric models for more than twenty years. With interest increasing in the area, this book will be an essential reference for macroeconomists.

Prophecy remains one of the ambiguities that need to be unlocked by critical philosophical thinking. The historicity of prophecy has suffered massive debates by different learned personages with some seeking to discredit the authenticity of the prophetic phenomena. Of central import is the African form of prophecy which, scholars tend to disagree over its roots, authenticity and historicity with much research being given to prove or disprove prophetic authority. This author seeks to prove the authentic standing of prophecy, with specific reference being attributed to the prophetic typology evident in the African prophetic circles. However, constant reference will be made to Israelite prophetic typology, origins and standing so that plausible comparison can be made and the exact classification of prophecy in Africa can be determined.

How do we know that the cause pursued by a social action is just? Inspired by a re-reading of sociological classics, the book offers a concept of transition from the idea of economic circulation of income and resources to social exchange between status groups and classes along with their underlying ideal values. The author evaluates levels of fairness and rationality in status groups across family, educational, occupational and management institutions against standards of consistency with shared settlement, industry, financial and political class interests. Theories of unfairness and irrationality are offered in terms of misaligned modes of social distribution and exchange. The book concludes with an overview of institutional obstacles to fair exchange and distributive social justice. The problem of objectivity in social science is addressed with a method of sociological deconstruction and reconstruction. It includes a de-objectifying understanding of the classics, their de-subjectifying interpretation, re-subjectifying conceptualization, and re-objectifying modeling.
