- THE GIRL WITH THE RED RIBBON -This 421 page novel was written by the award winning British author PF Farraday. An enthralling and enchanting story it follows a dark and mysterious secret of the rich Barrington Family and the Earl of Leicster whom in 1533 was cursed by the fate of a five hundred year old Chinese painting 'The Girl with the Red Ribbon'.
}}}}}}}}}}}} THE PLOT }}}}}}}}}}}}In 2014, a fresh-faced and recently graduated historian takes on his first job to purchase an old but unknown painting on behalf of the National Trust. Andy, the geeky intern is sent to Christie's auction house in New York to bid on the tattered painting of 'The Poor Chinese Girl', which once belonged to a wealthy noble family in Leicestershire, England. After being outbid by a secret buyer for a cool $5.5m, the puzzled graduate begins to dig deeper into the story behind the painting to discover why the artifact is so highly sought after. The answer lies in a dark secret documented in the archives of the highly-regarded rich Barrington family.In 1922, the Earl of Leicester and his wife died in a tragic car accident. Their only surviving son William Henry Barrington, the 12th Earl, was just thirteen years old when he inherited the estate, its priceless possessions and a large fortune. Lonely and grief stricken in the enormous castle, he begins to hear strange whisperings and noises coming from the cellar. One night young William throws on his dressing gown and slippers and by candlelight he slowly makes his way down old winding the stone stairs to the cellar. A dark place and creepy place indeed the tiptoes his way through a maze of doors until he finds one marked 'Keep out'. The noise ceases as he enters and finds himself standing before a dusty old painting from 1533 which is covered by a grubby white bed sheet. Nervously and filled with dread and fear the boy steps forward and tears the dust cover down, revealing the 'Painting of 'THE GIRL WITH THE RED RIBBON'. He lifts his candle aloft and for some time just stands in awe at the beautiful and enigmatic girl. But as the moonlight slowly creeps through the tiny cellar window the image begins to change. Her eyes become angry - hard and as dark as coal. Suddenly the door slams shut and a demented cackle reverberates around the room as the girl's spirit peels away from the canvas and frantically flies around the room. Quickly, the earl throws the cover back over the painting, runs out the cellar back up the winding stone staircase and locks his bedroom door. He vows never to return to the room again. But it's too late, the spirit has been awakened. Thirty years on, and as the rich earl grows older and more reclusive he becomes tired of the world outside full of people always holding out their hand and his hypocritical socialite friends. He yearns for the answer to a simple question: 'what do we really need in this life to be happy?' He spends more and more time alone in his studying the world through a book and obsessing over the 1533 painting. For countless months he sits in his library looking through old books and digging into its history when one day he finds a handwritten note hidden between the pages of an old dust manuscript. Earl Westland Barrington - the first earl of Leicester - tells of a very dark secret and declares in the note that he made a terrible mistake by bringing the painting to England. After a lot of thought and growing ever tired of his dull privileged life, the lonely and eccentric earl whom having never traveled outside of England decides to take a long boat voyage half way around the world in an attempt to return her to China. His travels turn into an amazing journey as it takes him down a path of self-discovery, humility and spirituality. But little does the great earl know that the biggest discovery is yet to come. The simple painting of the poor Chinese girl holds the answer to his life-long soul-searching question.

Kanyadaan

The story is based partially in the island of Jamaica and in America. It traces the life of a family from the 1970's into the future and explores the relationship between individual behaviour, greed, selfishness, societal violence, organized crime, tribalism, gang and urban warfare, science and genetics as a consequence of the impact of the global village and ambitions of geo-politics and world domination. It explores how the thirst and thrust for world domination impacts on the lives and relationship of the family, and their neighbours, and how these factors affect individual's actions which in turn affect the collective consciousness of a nation and lead to murder, mayhem, and social degradation. It explores the reactive and dangerous steps taken by members of this family in order to survive. Though informative and instructive, the book is a fast paced action pack story with lots of unexpected turns and developments as it builds up the reader with adrenaline paced narrative. You never quite know what is coming next. The story, though fictionalized, is predicated and inspired by true events, the composite of lives of real persons and the extrapolation of cause, effects, conscience, and consequences. It examines how the attitude and actions of individuals on each other can affect these individual and impacts on the wider society and the world far into the future with multiplying effects. It also looks at the role that science, religion, nuclear proliferation, and politics will play in the future world. Some of the names, locations, persons, and situations were changed, altered, and fictionalized in order to conceal the identity of some of the persons and characters, places, and to also add dramatic effect and to magnify and illustrate pertinent points and ideas.

A cop from Wisconsin pursues a killer through the terrifying slums of Nairobi and the memories of genocide IN MADISON, WISCONSIN, it's a big deal when African peace activist Joshua Hakizimana—who saved hundreds of people from the Rwandan genocide—accepts a position at the university to teach about “genocide and testimony.” Then a young woman is found murdered on his doorstep. Local police Detective Ishmael—an African-American in an “extremely white” town—suspects the crime is racially motivated; the Ku Klux Klan still holds rallies there, after all. But then he gets a mysterious phone call: “If you want the truth, you must go to its source. The truth is in the past. Come to Nairobi.” It’s the beginning of a journey that will take him to a place still vibrating from the genocide that happened around its borders, where violence is a part of everyday life, where big-oil money rules and where the local cops shoot first and ask questions later—a place, in short, where knowing the truth about history can get you killed. From the late 1940s to the mid-1970s, Richard Nixon was a polarizing figure in American politics, admired for his intelligence, savvy, and strategic skill, and reviled for his shady manner and cutthroat tactics. Conrad Black, whose epic biography of FDR was widely acclaimed as a masterpiece, now separates the good in Nixon—his foreign initiatives, some of his domestic policies, and his firm political hand—from the sinister, in a book likely to generate enormous attention and controversy. Black believes the hounding of Nixon from office was partly political retribution from a lifetime's worth of enemies and Nixon's misplaced loyalty to unworthy subordinates, and not clearly the consequence of crimes in which he participated. Conrad Black's own recent legal travails, though hardly comparable, have undoubtedly given him an unusual insight into the pressures faced by Nixon in his last two years as president and the first few years of his retirement.
